Jerry & Tracy Turco

This winter, NYC and Palm Springs interior designer and social darling Tracy Turco and her husband, real estate developer Jerry Turco, are opening the Art Hotel, a lovingly restored, mid-century modern boutique hotel in the heart of Palm Springs, California.

At first glance, the colorful boutique hotel will feature an art mural by famed New York City street artist, Damon Johnson, son of the New York Post's Page Six editor, Richard Johnson. Every exterior and interior detail, including the wallpaper, furnishings, bed linens, pillows and decor have been handpicked or designed by owner and designer Tracy Turco.

Turco's signature modern retro style with pops of bold colors and black and white tones will take over every hotel room, featuring brightly painted doors in every color, vintage record players, iconic photos of music legends, original artwork from local Palm Springs artists, and textured walls. As guests enter the hotel, visitors will be transported to different eras through the hotel's polychromatic and playful communal spaces.

The 1960s hotel is slated to open to the public in January 2020.
