

Israel Humanitarian Foundation

Israel Humanitarian Foundation (IHF) is the premier connection between directed American philanthropy and the unfulfilled needs of medical, educational, humanitarian and social service projects in Israel and the U.S., enabling donors to have a direct and personal impact on the quality of life of thousands less fortunate. IHF offers directed giving, which enables donors to choose the charity of their choice.

IHF was founded by former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, two years before President Kennedy appointed him to the court. Goldberg fought for the underprivileged and disadvantaged all his life.

IHF has sent millions of dollars to hundreds of charities supporting a diverse range of projects that impact children and families in need, medical research and treatment, education, humanitarian aid and much more.
